

VISITING SCHOLAR PROGRAM

APPLICATION PROCESS & DEADLINES

Interested candidates should complete the application. Only complete applications submitted in English will be considered. A completed application includes:

- Application: Applications must be fully completed. Applications with incomplete sections will not be considered by the committee.
- Current CV or Resume: Candidates must submit a current CV or resume detailing their educational background, academic qualifications, publications, and any relevant awards or honors.
- References and/or publications:
 - Student Candidates: Two (2) Letters of Reference or Recommendation: Visiting Scholar Candidates who are currently pursuing their degree must submit two letters of reference or recommendation.
 - Professors/Post-Doc Candidates: Two (2) sample publications: Visiting Scholar Candidates who are professors or who have already completed their PhD must submit two sample publications.
- Summary Statement of Proposed Research Project: A statement outlining the candidate's proposed research project that will be conducted while in residence at the School of Computing and Information as a Visiting Scholar must be included.
- English Language Proficiency: As of January 5, 2015, the U.S. Department of State has updated the J-1 program requirements to include the following eligibility criteria: In order to ensure their success (both in their program and living in the United States), J-1 exchange visitors are now subject to English language proficiency requirements. Program sponsors (hosting departments) are required to determine if the incoming J-1 exchange visitor possesses "sufficient proficiency in the English language to participate in his or her program" AND "function on a day-to-day basis." The governmental requirements also state that an objective measurement must be used to determine the J-1 exchange visitor's English proficiency.

Please note that these requirements do not replace University policies—University Policy 02-02-16: Certification of English Language Proficiency for Teaching and University Policy 09-02-01: Assessment of English Language Proficiency for Admission. Scholars who will teach or be enrolled in coursework as part of their J-1 program must continue to satisfy the applicable University policy in addition to meeting the new J-1 requirements.

- Accepted objective measurements:
 - Native English speaker - If the J-1 exchange visitor is from a country whose official language is English.
 - Recognized English test - Test results should be less than two years old. The Office of International Services recommends the TOEFL (minimum TOEFL score of 75 with all sub-scores in at least the intermediate or fair range) or the IELTS (minimum IELTS score of 6.5).

- Signed Documentation from an academic institution or an English language school - Acceptable documentation includes a transcript or diploma certifying completion of a degree at an institution where the sole language of instruction is English or official certification of completion of an English language program within the previous two years where proficiency attained is clearly indicated.
- Documented interview conducted by your faculty sponsor/host - An interview should be conducted when none of the above documentation is available or where documentation does not clearly indicate current, adequate English proficiency for the proposed program. The interview must be held in-person, through a video-conference, or telephone (if video-conferencing is not an option).
 - The provided J-1 English Proficiency: Interview Assessment Report must be used.
- Intended Dates of Residence: Clearly state the dates during which the candidate intends to be in residence. The Visiting Scholar Program requires a minimum of six weeks and a maximum of one year in residence. The standard residence period begins at the start of the academic year (August), but selected Visiting Scholars may begin their residency at any time as approved by the selection committee.
- Demonstration of Available Funding: Candidates must demonstrate that they have sufficient funds to support themselves while in residence here. Candidates selected to participate in the Visiting Scholar Program must arrive fully funded and are not eligible to be hired as research assistants or visiting professors. Living expenses in Pittsburgh are estimated at $1,300 per month, plus an additional $400 per month for each dependent the Visiting Scholar supports in Pittsburgh. Demonstration of funding may be in the form of a bank statement (in USD or with a bank-certified notation of the value in USD) or a letter from a funding organization detailing the amount of funds set aside for the candidate's research.

APPLICATION DEADLINES

Due to visa requirements, candidates are strongly encouraged to apply at least three months prior to their intended start date. There are no official application deadlines, but the committee will not consider applications that arrive within thirty days of the proposed start date.

PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS & DETAILS

- Housing: The School does not provide housing to Visiting Scholars. Accepted Visiting Scholars are strongly encouraged to contact their sponsor/host for assistance with identifying housing options. Hosts and school administrators will not obtain or reserve housing for Visiting Scholars. Learn more housing options at Pitt's Off-Campus Living site and Cool Pittsburgh site.
- Residence Details: Visiting Scholars have access to the University of Pittsburgh Library System and may use the library at any time that it is open to students.

Due to space restrictions, the school provides shared office space (or individual office space if available), but Visiting Scholars will receive access to a shared workspace and to collaborative workspaces. Please note that you may audit classes with a professor's permission. Audited classes do not grant academic credit.

You are strongly encouraged to bring your own laptop, as there are no public computers at the School and computers in Hillman Library are limited. Visiting Scholars are given full access to the School's wireless network while in residence.

- Visa Requirements: An invited visiting scholar will be required to apply for and obtain a United States Department of State J-1 Exchange Visitor (Scholar) visa. Under U.S. immigration regulations, Visiting Scholars are required to maintain health insurance for the duration of your residence in the United States.
